FLEXIBLE WORKING POLICY

1 Purpose and Scope

- 1.1 The Glasgow School of Art (GSA) is committed to enabling employees to balance work with other non work-related responsibilities and this policy sets out the provisions for employees of GSA to request to work flexibly. The policy does not provide an automatic right to work flexibly but provides employees with a mechanism by which requests can be made.
- 1.2 The policy is designed to facilitate discussion between an employee and his/her line manager in considering flexible working patterns and to find a solution that ensures the needs of both the employee and the School are met. As such, employees have a responsibility to carefully consider their desired working pattern when making an application and line managers are required to ensure that all requests are considered reasonably, equitably and within specific timescales (refer to section 4).

2 Eligibility

- 2.1 In line with the Work and Families Act 2006, an employee has the right to make an application to work flexibly if they:
- Have been employed by the School continuously for a period of 26 weeks at the date of application;
 - Have not made any other application under this policy in the preceding twelve months.
- 2.2 The School recognises that there may be circumstances not covered by the legislation, as outlined above, where an employee may wish to make a request to work flexibly and, as such, is agreeable to considering such requests on an individual basis. Such requests will also be considered following the procedure set out in this policy.

3 Flexible working

- 3.1 Under this policy, employees have the right to make a request to:
- Change the hours they work
 - Change the times when they are required to work
 - Work from another location or from home
- 3.2 In line with this, flexible working can be arranged in a variety of formats, such as;
- Flexible hours
 - Part-time working
 - Compressed hours
 - Annualised hours

- Job sharing
- Home working

Please see Appendix 1 for more details.

- 3.3 Applications to alter working patterns need not necessarily involve a significant change to the current pattern. For example, an employee may wish to commence work thirty minutes later and undertake this time at a later point in the working day.

4 Procedure

- 4.1 The procedure for making an application for flexible working is as follows:

Step 1

The employee must make a considered application in writing to his/her immediate line manager (see Appendix 2 – Application for Flexible Working Form), at least eight weeks before the desired new work pattern would be due to commence. The application should outline what the employee's desired pattern of work would be as well as what the potential impact upon the department/colleagues may be. The employee should also try to provide an indication of how such impact can be accommodated.

Note: When preparing an application employees should give careful consideration to any financial implications (i.e. salary and pension) that may result from an adjustment to working hours.

Step 2

Within twenty-eight days of receipt of the employee's application, the line manager will invite the employee to a meeting to discuss the request. The discussion will allow both parties to explore the desired work pattern in depth and to determine how the request might be accommodated. The meeting will also provide the opportunity to consider any alternative working patterns should there be difficulties in accommodating the initial request.

Step 3

Within fourteen days of the meeting taking place, the line manager will write to the employee to confirm whether the requested work pattern has been agreed and, if so, the effective date. Should the request not be approved, clear business grounds will be provided.

Step 4 - Appeal

Should an employee be dissatisfied with the outcome of their request to work flexibly they have the right to appeal the decision. Appeals should be made in writing to the Human Resources department within fourteen days of the written decision having been received and should outline clearly the grounds for appeal.

The Human Resources department will assign the appropriate member of senior staff to consider the appeal and the employee will be invited to attend a meeting within twenty-eight days of receipt of the written submission.

Within fourteen days of the meeting the employee will be informed in writing of the outcome of the appeal.

- 4.2 Only one application per employee per year will be considered and any changes made will be deemed to be permanent, unless a trial period is mutually agreed with the line manager.

5 Questions or Complaints

- 5.1 Clarification on the terms or operation of this Policy may be obtained from a member of the HR Department. Any complaints in relation to the Policy or its operation should be directed to a senior member of the HR Department.

6 Monitoring

- 6.1 The number and profile of staff invoking right to apply for flexible working will be monitored by the HR Department. The outcomes of the monitoring process will be presented along with other Performance Indicators to relevant committees within the School including the HR Committee (which has representation from each recognised TU) and the Equality and Diversity Group.

Flexible Working Arrangements

Flexible hours

An employee varies his/her normal starting, finish and break times but still fulfils the total number of weekly working hours.

Part-time working

An employee works fewer days or hours per week than a full time equivalent employee. Full-time hours are considered to be 35 hours per week.

Compressed hours

An employee works his/her total number of weekly working hours over fewer days, e.g. working 35 hours over 4 days rather than 5 days.

Annualised hours

The total number of working hours are calculated over a year rather than a week, allowing the employee to identify “peaks and troughs” in his/her workload and to devise an annual working pattern in accordance with this.

Job sharing

Two employees share the duties of one full-time post. Job sharers divide pay, holidays and any other relevant terms and conditions.

Home working

An employee is able to undertake his/her duties from a remote location, such as from home.
