7. Course Aims:

This course directs students' research towards the major issues in visual and material culture, including international perspectives, which have shaped Modern and Postmodern outputs, concepts and theories. Case studies are drawn from design, architecture and fine art, and lectures draw from the work and methods of a range of subject domains, from social sciences, economics, and visual culture to philosophy and pedagogy.

Aims

- To further students' appreciation and understanding of a range of sociocultural and socioeconomic issues, national and international, which pertain to the study and practice of art, design and architecture
- To set out the key intellectual tenets of modern and postmodern eras, and to exemplify these aspects through close analysis of design and art
- To further equip students with the vocabulary and terminology to engage in discussion on issues of increasing relevance to their own studio practice
- To develop the core skills required to formally present debate and discussion in critical, historical and cultural studies

- To make students aware of a wide range of research sources, including electronic sources and databases

8. Intended Learning Outcomes of Course:

By the end of this course students will be able to:

- Identify and discuss some major issues which contextualise study in art, design and architecture, including international perspectives
- Identify and explain modern and postmodern tenets as read through examples from material culture in design, architecture and art
- Employ a range of key terms and definitions within discourse on cultural studies and the analysis of material culture
- Apply the core principles of critical writing and verbal presentation in critical, historical and cultural studies
- Understand the importance of self-directed and original critical work in critical, historical and cultural studies

9. Indicative Content:

Contemporary cultural studies
 Modernism and Postmodernism as socioeconomic and cultural formations
 International perspectives on material culture, politics and ethics
 Languages and vocabularies of critical studies
