Additional Study Costs

In undertaking your studies you may incur additional costs over and above your tuition fees. Additional costs will vary depending on your programme of study. Examples of additional costs include:

- Ongoing - materials to develop work in response to coursework
- Incidental - attending project site visits and field trips
- One-off - graduation gown hire and photography
- Personal choice - attending optional study trips, participating in study abroad exchange and purchasing personal equipment

The following costs are provided to help you budget for your studies, though it is possible to work on a budget lower than this. The costs are indicative only and do not take into account decisions you might make related to selecting materials, production of work, or purchase of personal and specialist equipment for exclusive use. You will be provided with support through tutorials to consider costs, methods, materials and sustainable approaches to develop work and achieve intended learning outcomes.

Your Programme Leader will be happy to advise you if you require further information and advice about these estimated costs.

Typical costs incurred associated with your programme (Indicative Only)
Costs of materials to develop work in response to project briefs, coursework and producing work for exhibition, e.g. making materials, print costs, photocopying etc.	£50 - £140
Costs of optional study trips and other enhancement activities	£40

Optional Study Trips

Optional study trips are not mandatory. Your programme will make cost-neutral alternative arrangements to ensure your studies are not impacted if you elect not to attend a trip or study visit.

Study Abroad

Study Abroad where available on your course may incur costs. Costs will be dependent on the location of the activity and the experience provided by the host institution which will be negotiated prior to undertaking any overseas experience.

Technical Services Department

GSA's Technical Services Department (TSD) provides access to equipment, materials, workshops and services to enable projects to be completed in safe, sustainable and alternative ways.

TSD staff also support students through consultations where scale, materials and cost are discussed in detail. A wide range of materials are available to support various approaches to making work. Where materials are supplied, they are at cost price (+ wastage). Materials used during workshop inductions will be supplied at no cost. We may refer you to an external provider if a process isn't available at GSA. You will have to meet the costs of this service.

You can read more about TSD here.

Media Studio

A wide range of production and presentation equipment is available to students for loan from the Media Studio, making it possible to successfully develop your work without making an additional significant personal investment in equipment.

Library Services

This is delivered through the development of rich and diverse physical and online collections, focusing on contemporary practice and making.
